THE KEARSARGE SEA FIGHT.

THE COMBATANTS COMPARED

The English have always claimed a high rate of speed for the Alabama, and, as she possessed this great requisite in naval warfare, of course she had the advantage of her opponent. The Kanrange has been cruising for the Alabama for two years, and has been cruising for the Alabama for two years, and has been cruising for the Alabama for two years, and has been cruising for the Alabama for two years, and has been cruising for the harbama had machinery. Therefore it is fair to presume that the was in no first class condition to go into an action. While the Alabama, being built, manned and armed in Englissd, has had opportunities to refit unmoiested, and was in a prime condition for an action, or she would never have couried a contest with the Yankee. With the bare exceptions of the trifling weight of metal and the skillful evolutions of the kearsarge, the Alabama had everything in her favor. The result proves what we have always said—when these two vessels met the pirate would be the sufferer.

The ARMAMENT OF THE KEARSARGE.

The sides of the Kearsarge were trailed all over with chain cables. Between the coils and under the planking were stuffings of oakum, pitched. A great portion of the sides were injunerable. Mr. Mason, the Confederate envoy, regrets the loss of the Alabama, but does not consider that Capital Semmes and under the panamy were calculated and under the panamy were calculated were invulnerable. Mr. Mason, the Confederate envoy, regrets the loss of the Alabama, but does not consider that Captain Semmes was in the elightest degree to blame. The fight, he says, was simply a mistake on the part of the Confederate commander. Semmes has often been twitted for avoiding armed Federals, and for gallantly attacking utterly unarmed merchantmen in genuine pirate style. When he was challenged by the commander of the Kearsarge, everybody in Cherbourg, it appears, and it would be disgraceful if he refused the challenge, and this, coupled with his belief that the Kearsarge was not so strong as shelreally proved to be, made him agree to fight. The gennery of both warships is said by the Deerhound people to have been very fine.

THE OFFICERS AND GREW OF THE KEARSARGE.

Now that we have noticed the vessels, it becomes our gratifying duty to seek of the gallant men who showed the British shelf French spectators, as well as the world at large, what Americans can do. The following is a list of the officers of the Kearsarge: Outdons—John A. Winelow, of Massachusetts. Lieuteman Commander—James S. Thoruton, of New Hampshire.

Paganaster—Joseph A. Smith, of Massachusetts.

Lieuteman Commander—James S. Thoruton, of New Hampshire.

Paganaster—Joseph A. Smith, of Massachusetts.

Lieuteman Commander—James S. Thoruton, of New Hampshire.

Paganaster—Joseph A. Smith, of Massachusetts. Benry McConnell, of Penneylvania.

Acting Master—Shes—William Harper Yeaton, of Massachusetts, Junes C. Wallen, of Pennsylvania.

Bentseath—James C. Wallen, of Pennsylvania.

Capt. Semmes, finding that he had no discreative, determined to put the best face on the matter, and to make as much capital for himself as possible. He therefore wrote the second of t

The first of feet and the first of the first VOLUME XVII.

CHICAGO, FRIDAY, JULY 8, 1864.

Immediately the American Minister telegraphed to Capt. Winslow, of the Kersarges, then bying in one of the ports of Holland, and to the old silling frigate St. Louis, supposed to be at Casis, to repair immediately to Cherbourg, to catch the pirate if possible. The Kensarge arrived at once, but the St. Louis had not yet had time to arrive at the moment of the fight.

THE PROTEST OF ME DAYTON.

The American Minister also protested at once to the French Government against the admission of the Alabama, and reminded the Foreign Secretary of this previous promise in regard to this vessel. The American Minister could with more inside protest energetically in view of the fact that the Alabama did not come into a French port under stress of weather; she seemed to have struck a straight line from the Cape to Cherbourg; she did not turn either to the right or to the left; she did not attempt to go into cither the ports of England, or of Holland, or of Belgium, or of Spain, or of Portugai, as she might have done with the same facility. Mr. Dayton therefore made a most apt and most forcible point in declaring to the Foreign Minister that, by his indulgence, the rebels were using French ports exactly as if they were their own, that they paid no regard to the stress of weather clause, and that such had been the hospitality shown them in France that they were fast learning to make it their only rendezvous.

The result of this prefest was that Semmes after the thing had gone through the "circumiceution office," received a notice from the Maritime Prefect to leave as soon as he had provisioned and coaled, and not to wait for repairs, as he had expected to do. Assoon as this order was sent to Semmes, Mr. Dayton as this order was sent to Semmes had been ordered out and would be obliged to go.

Why SHMMES FOREIT. was probably the distance at first. The ships were never nearer than a quarter of a mile. The Alabama fired the quicker—in all about 150 rounds. The Kearsarge fired about 100, chiefly 11-inch shells. One of these shells broke the Alabama's ruider, and compelled her to hoist sail. By this time, however, atter always an oral work, the Alabama was sinking, and could only make the best of her way in the direction of Cherbourg. To all appearances the superiority of the Kearsarge-lay partly in her guns, and, of course, somewhat in her more numerous crew, but not less in her powerful machinery, which enabled her to move mo re-quickly and maneuver more easily.

There appears to have been a very respectable allowance of killed, wounded and missing, and among the latter is an English surgeon, who is supposed to have gone to the bottom in the midst of his bleeding patients. Exactly an hour elapsed from the first shot to the-moment when it became obvious that the vessel was sinking, when, indeed, the rudder was broken and the fires were put out.

That is the pace at which our mayal en-wooden. On board-the Alabama all the hamulocks were let loose and arrangements had been made for sinking rather than that she should be captured. As far as it is known, not a relic of the Alabama is in the possession of her successful rival.

relic of the Aisbama is in the possession of her successful rival.

DENIAL OF THE ABSCED STORIES OF FEDERAL. INHUMANITY.

A gentleman here remarked to Captain Semmes that it was a wonder the Kearsarge did not run him and his crew down when they were struggling in the water, but the Captain admitted that the Federal commander acted humanely and secording to the laws of civilized warfare. Some of the Deerhound salions say that the Kearsarge fired four times at the Alabama after she had surrendered, but from all inquiries I have made thave reason to believe this is an error. One 11-inch shell from the Kearsarge field on the Alabama's deck without exploding, and was taken up and thrown byerboard. When the Confederate ship was sinking, her First Lieutenant told the men to Jump overboard with something in their hands, an oar or any other portable object. Captain Semmess is a capital swimmer. The wound in his hand was canned by a splinter from a shell, and, being in the water so long, the wound, though trifling at first, became inflamed. He is going into the country for a few days to recruit his health.

This force appeared to be a reconnoitering party, and they had only been in the town a few moments whon a detachment of our regular cavalry, from Carlisle, Pa., commanded by Lieut. McLean, dashed into the place.

The rebels attempted to capture the steam-boat Live Oak at Waverly Landing, but the boat escaped in aick of time. They fired 200 shots into her, killing one man, and captured the clerk, who was left ashore. In consequence of the dangers of the rebels, steamboats engaged in the Missouri River trade, have Isid up. My sphere of duty is here till Congress adjourne, and never having been absent from it a stagic day, it would not be right to leave it how for my own pix-sonal gratification.

Appealed to leave it how for my own pix-sonal gratification.

Appealed to leave the delegable for the 9th district at the State Convention, to accept a vention, for observuity as I would have retired to make place for some other candidate, it seemed that, white our brive defenders in the field ware standing at that posts so final lessy, no one in edyl life could rightfully desert his, if his constituents commanded

I endorse most heartily the policy of confessions the property of rebals, voluntarily in arms against their country; and who, guiltier them the porrieds, seek to involve country and citizen alike in a common destruction.

I am for striking at slavery, the cases of all one work, and the progenitor of this gigantic rebellion, with every power under our control—War Power of the Army, the Naval Power of the Navy, and the Proclamation power of the Treatdent; and for its final and irrerecable extipation from the land, by an amendment to the Constitution, which shall make that instrument, as well as the Republic itself, absolutely and forever free; and thus also obey the Divine injunction, "to break every yoke and let the oppressed go free."

I am against tresson, whether it rears it hideous form in front of our patriotic and gullant armires, or under the roof of our espitol; in the streets of New York, or within the borders of Indiana; and I am against any severance of the Union by the sword of rebellion, by a diagraceful compromise, or by a base surrender of the sacred cause in which so many marters for the right have so sailly and yet so bravely failes.

And, to wum up, I am for Abraham Lincoln—the pilot who shrank not in the darkest hour—and for Adrew Johnson—"faithful among the faithless found," for the highest offices in the nation's gift, of which they are each so worthy.

At this hour, (19 m.) the celebration of the anhiversory of the nation's birthday is in progress, and I doubt if the people of Nash. while ever before witnessed such a pageant on this hellowed day, for its observance had long ceased in the South, before treason had openly struck at the Government.

The procession included the milliary, benerolent societies, fire companies, and private citizens; and was more than half a mile in length. A large number of houses were decorated with the Stars and Stripes, and one of the finest fags I have seen is Boating from the spire of The capital.

Speaking is at this moment in progress, in a grove near the city, the orators being Gov. Johnson, Gen. Rousseau and others. The rebels and their ay mpathlares have remained inside their house, during the day, evidently cheg freed at the pageant before them.

"Well, gold closed at 300 in New York, to day."
"Where did you get the news?" I saked. "The bankers got a dispatch," said he as I feared the report might be true, I said nothing, but the dispatches of that night to the papers were as follows:
"Gold opened at 370, rose to 275, and closed decidedly lower, at 255,225."
Next creaing I met him, and, forgetting how his former lie had been exposed, he told me that gold closed at 385. I then reminded him of his former statement, and remarked that if he could not communicate the truth, he had better remain silent. The fact is, gold closed at 350.

Hills rise into mountains, and deck themselves with pine and codar, acrayed sometimes in almost artistic order.

Crossing the Biack Hills, we descand into the valley of the Sweetwater, a beautiful mountains stream, deriving its mane from a peculiar taste given the water by the sikali which abounds in the vicinity. This alkali is the dread of emigrants. If a horse or make gets much of it, he is done for, unless an anicote is speedily administered.
